New York Knicks point guard Jeremy Lin has rented a condominium in Manhattan's W Downtown Hotel & Residences, said a spokeswoman for the building's operator.

Lin is leasing a furnished, 1,180-square-foot (110-square- meter), two-bedroom apartment in the Financial District tower, with southern views that include the Statue of Liberty, said Daniella Weinberg, a New York-based spokeswoman for Starwood Hotels & Resorts Worldwide Inc. (HOT)'s W Hotels.

The 57-story W Downtown Hotel & Residences, built by New York developer Joseph Moinian near the World Trade Center site, includes 217 hotel rooms and 222 condominium units, according to Streeteasy.com, a property-listings website. Residents of the condo units, which begin on the 32nd floor, have access to all the hotel amenities, including room service and daily housekeeping.

Lin's agent, Roger Montgomery, didn't immediately respond to a voicemail and e-mail seeking comment. Jonathan Supranowitz, a Knicks spokesman, declined to comment.

Lin, 23, has averaged 24.5 points and 9.4 assists while leading the Knicks to a 7-2 record since taking over as a starter on Feb. 6. The former Harvard University point guard has a base salary of about $762,000 this season.

Lin's rental of the apartment was reported earlier today by the New York Post.
