

BlackBook BBook.com

June 5, 2011

Calling All Fashionistas! W New York Downtown & Refinery 29 Throw a Party Together

When it comes to nightlife, the W New York Downtown finally seems to be taking the "downtown" part of its name seriously, as evidenced by the line-up of DJs they've secured for a new bi-weekly party at the hotel's Living Room Terrace. Starting tomorrow, with DJ Mia Moretti and her violinist friend Caitlin Moe, and then going every other Tuesday until August 30th, the "Summer Jam" series (lazy name, guys) will feature in chronological order: sophomore clothing founder Chrissie Miller, Paul Seigny, Jesse Marco, and Jus Ske. (Admittedly, those last two favor the 1Oak/TenJune/Avenue crowd more than the fashion/art element that's recently cannibalized New York nightlife.)

The W Downtown is also partnering with Refinery 29 in an effort to attract "fashionistas," as the press release calls them. Summer Jam will also feature signature drinks from their resident mixologist and a menu that carries the trendiest bites this city has to offer: tacos, ceviche, sliders, and because you asked for it, pork belly. Tuesday nights in New York have officially become the new Saturday.