

NEW YORK

February 22, 2012

Jeremy Lin Gets a Bachelor Pad in the Financial District

Up until now, after a game at Madison Square Garden, Jeremy Lin would have to schlep all the way home to Trump Tower in Westchester. According to Google Maps, the commute takes a minimum of 46 minutes by car. For the world's most influential and important person, this is unacceptable. So, after putting up with this nonsense for an entire week, Lin has begun renting a "swanky, 1,182-square-foot condo" at the W Hotel in the financial district, according to the Post. Eleven minutes by car from MSG, says Google. That's 35 more minutes for Lin to enjoy life as the city's hottest commodity, a.k.a., eat burgers and play Monopoly.